| Creating a video and communication strategy, set up meetings, finding groups to help, funding to help pay for this, outreach to other organization. Foundations to provide a couple thousand $$, Audubon - showcasing restaurants, shops, communities, capturing stories, Mayor/Governor, outreach to other national, international companies (Lego) In person meetings ideal, drawing up ideas, identify key dates to time the release on, top down message from the mayor, educating the politicians, media, 6 month process for creating - initial timeline NOTE: The initiatives discussed tonight could be incorporated as examples/testimonials for the video. | | | Education about vacant lots and food deserts/apartheid and how it relates to other issues. Education around ownership of vacant lots and issues re. current Adopt-a-lot program, which includes access to lot but not ownership. So lots can be reclaimed and participants can be discouraged from further action. Advocate for change to Adopt-a-lot program. Perhaps vacant lots should be made available to attain ownership if no plans are made within a period of time, perhaps 1 or 2 years. Somehow make ownership an attainable option. Talk to people with Baltimore office of Sustainability or Planning. Abby Cox? Additional provisions/support for the lots so community groups not doing the work without resources. Natasha Neale (Bmore Beautiful) works | Composting- teaching folks how to compost. Already have mechanisms to use waste from businesses to have a container. Going to community meetings of groups that already exist, already impacted communities, high school students. Any of us could be supporting these groups. Addressing assumptions about why there's alot of trash. Overcoming myths of crime and vacant properties leading to why there's trash. Invest time in my own community, mostly white, middle class, in position to make change there with them. Who can you bring with you to add momentum to current projects? | |
